

The article studies the features of morphogenesis of wheat seedlings, the maintenance of pigments of photosynthesis at presence and absence of light, as well as at the removal of the main and additional germinal roots and shoot.