

The paper presents the results of several years of observation meant to identify the most resistant winter-hardy varieties of roses of various garden groups for successful cultivation in Saratov.