

Investigated features of variability of the structural organization of leaves of wood plants at damage by their gaul the inducing invertebrates.