

The estimation of samples of an amaranth varieties on duration of the interphase periods, productivity, to biochemical indicators of quality of seeds and an elevated biomass is spent. The variety samples suitable for selection for herveest quality improvement were sorted out.